

I Have a Double Life: Here and in Another Universe

Post by u/zorelyaen on r/ParallelUniverse

https://www.reddit.com/r/ParallelUniverse/comments/1silfmy/i_have_a_double_life_here_and_in_another_universe/

Total of 107 questions answered

Questions and Answers by Theme

I. Astral Projection Techniques & Training	1
II. Mechanics of the Double Life & Inter-Universal Travel.....	9
III. Life, Society & Nature of the Other Universe	16
IV. Multiverse Structure, Physics & The Core DNA	22
V. Humanity's Origins, Purpose & Practical Advice.....	25
VI. Theology, Religion & Spiritual Entities	30
VII. Death, Reincarnation & The Recycling Process	33
VIII. Verification, Personal Background & Addresses to Skepticism.....	39

I. Astral Projection Techniques & Training

Q: This is fascinating and thank you for taking the time. I have a few questions:

- 1. You mention you have family in another higher dimension and that they have helped you. Are they aware of your human existence and what do you mean by family?
- 2. Does earth existence itself have parallel universes i.e. the same person living a different earth life and have you had that experience?
- 3. In your understanding based on this higher awareness, are we living within a prison planet or simulation, or is it a projection of consciousness?
- 4. How do you know these other universes are objectively real and are not lucid projections of your consciousness ? It is my belief that even this experience of earth is wholly a holographic projection of consciousness.
- 5. If one wants to practice AP successfully, what route would you recommend? Can one learn without a teacher?

Thank you very much for the opportunity to make these questions.

Edit: spelling

A: 1) They are aware I'm a human from Earth. And I mean family in the sense that I'm married over there. It's hard to keep track due to memory issues, but last I checked, we're 113 in total. It's a harem, but they're not mine (even though they insist they are): I prefer to say we all belong to each other.

2) Yes and yes. One of the perks/cons of having my experience is that, more often than not, I tend to get trapped in alternative versions of Earth when I dream.

3) I had that same question. After proper research and testing, we're not in a simulation. Long story short (and simplified to human level): each universe has a core and each core has a "DNA" that only certain "beings" can have access to. If we were in a simulation made by another race, that core would be without the DNA since only those "beings" have access to it. Our universe has the "DNA", thus it's not simulated.

4) Go back to point 3

5) I recommend full soul control. You can actually do it without a teacher but I don't think it will be easier since you'll lack instructions. If you want a teacher, I'm up for it. Yet beware: I can offer the key but I won't guarantee the door you'll open will be the "correct" one or even a "good" one. You'll walk, yes, but your path will be yours and yours alone. I'll just give you the legs

Q: So, would you be willing to teach me? I've been curious about astral projection for a few decades now, and I'd love to try it for myself. I'm an adventurous sort, so this has TREMENDOUS appeal to me.

A: Hop into my dms if you want. I'll answer whenever available

Q: Woah, I spent 39 minutes here reading all of this and mainly answered questions. I don't know why and how this came on my feed, but hey, what's up!

I started astral projecting five years ago, "unplanned." I can't do it on my own, but it happens sometimes. I never understood why and how. I tried to learn about it, but a sense of not being ready kept me away.

Mainly, I saw visions. How could I even learn it the proper way? And how come I am able to do it uncontrollably, like unplanned?

A: You'll learn by controlling your soul. I can help you with that if you want. If not, then just follow this: when meditating, your mind will take different colors. You'll achieve total control when you can choose the color of your mind and change it willingly. After that, just keep meditating with your mind totally "dark" until that darkness takes shape. Images will appear slowly (or fast, I took 6 months, my wife only needed 1 hour) and I'll assure you: whatever you see afterwards will be with your soul, thus you're APing. What happens with you and your travels afterwards will depend on you though. And be careful, because when humans become aware of their soul, they emit a certain "vibe"/"aura"/frequency that some creatures love to predate on. Probably you'll start having night terrors because of them.

Also, if you're doing it uncontrollably, maybe it's them pulling you away from your body to feed on your fear. I had it happen to me twice. Fucking terrifying. But tbh I can't surely know since I don't know your circumstances

Q: There is a book on AP that actually describes focusing on the darkness of your eyelids until it becomes "3D" and then focusing more until you see images and can manipulate it to turn into what you want, then you can AP. Do you think the experience this person was describing is the same as yours in this case?

A: I can't be sure. I haven't used nor will I use books from humans regarding spirituality. If you really want to help others be "enlightened" you don't make a book and put a label and a price on your knowledge. That's the capitalism showing. Reason as to why I've never said anything and just watched from afar.

But I guess the pros is that your knowledge is there, in a book for people to read even when you're gone so I guess that's something

Q: Did it take you a while just to be able to AP for the first time or did it come by easy/by accident? Also maybe a dumb question but does it feel like coming back to this life makes you inherently dumber? Not like less knowledge but unable in certain aspects

A: It took me 6 months of daily practice (at least 3 hours per day) for my first AP to be successful. Successful in the sense of me being aware of it, because my "teacher" told me more than once that I actually managed to AP but I couldn't remember anything so it was hard to believe at first, until that experience 6 months after I started meditating

Also, regarding that aspect, yes. Imagine that your brain is divided between two TVs: one for your life and one for that other life. The more time you spend focusing on one TV the less you'll remember the other one. That's what I'm suffering right now. It's actually very scary because it's like I'm having memory issues. I can be living my day as usual and then tomorrow I can remember NOTHING, full delete, of that day before.

Q: That's dope, hopefully one day I can come check out this universe. I only started meditating and trying to AP at the beginning of this year but I feel like I'm just walking around a dark warehouse hoping to stumble into the exit.

Do you use “exit techniques” or just straight meditation to AP? I’ve seen a mix of people saying to just let go and let it happen vs you’ll never AP if you don’t use a technique. Also have you met your higher self? Or is it more like gaining perspective from yourself as another thought but from a higher dimension?

A: If you play videogames, it's like logging on and off from your account. If I want to enter, I just focus and "log in" to my other body. When I get tired or have to go, I just stop focusing. I separated my consciousness in a ratio of 70/30 (30 here, the rest there) because, at first, if I left over there, my body there went limp, so I took that choice. I'm definitely dumber/with memory problems here ever since, but there's a price to pay for everything I guess. Yet again: maybe it's simple for me because I have more than a decade of doing it daily.

Yes, I've brought my body from there to here, but since I'm a higher dimensional being over there, this universe cannot sustain my full existence so I have to AP from there to here, which is exhausting ASF, plus my senses get "blurred" when doing it

Q: -How do you enter different realities after you AP?

-What is your AP method?

A: - I can either hop in a portal with the coordinates or just hover outside the universe and then enter it, though it's an external method that's an exclusive perk for beings from higher dimensions

- You mean how I initially connected, or how I "log in"? Cuz I do AP almost daily, been doing it for years now, and it's like "logging in", kinda like putting a VR set but you can still see what's outside the VR unless you close your eyes and focus. I dare say I can skip the meditation phase due to how frequently I've done this, but I'm not sure.

Q: You keep talking about controlling your soul. Can you describe what you mean by soul and how is it controlled (briefly obviously...if you can explain it briefly)

A: The soul is composed of fragments from other souls and part of the consciousness of their original bearers. Through meditation, you'll have to control your soul and it's impulses along with the interaction your brain has with your consciousness, in order to actually move the way you wanna move.

Q: 1) You said you're part of a race of "hybrids"; can you detect when you're interacting with someone who is a hybrid? Like some of us talking to you, here?

2) You said: "my 'teacher' told me more than once that I actually managed to AP but I couldn't remember anything so it was hard to believe at first" ... does this suggest that when you were learning to AP, you have to be monitored by someone ... as people are when they're doing regression?

A: 1) Not really. We can identify ourselves by instinct, but we cannot detect each other

2) He was always APing as well. He let me know when I was successful and when I wasn't. I began being successful, yet it took a while before I could actually start to be aware I was APing. I don't think he was monitoring me that close, but the fact that he did APs to my house more often than not maybe can say otherwise. I don't truly know, he was a random guy who also happened to be a fucking extraterrestrial being who was incognito for whatever reason. It took me so much to believe him but he did so many paranormal things in my face that I just couldn't question his veracity any further. Why was I chosen? Idk, coincidence maybe? Or maybe because he was a hybrid as well, confirming your theory? Idk. I'm just thankful I am who I am today because that random ass thing dressing as a human decided to be friendly to me one random morning.

Q: I'm so high but how do you sign up for this. Like how do these people get chosen or selected.

A: Lol just DM. I'll send the instructions. Just beware: things may not be pleasant if things go south

Q: Why gatekeep? If your legit and serious tell everyone how

A: Am I gatekeeping something?

Q: wow thanks for sharing so interesting

What has been the key for you to astral project once you achieved it?

Can you bring wisdom from there about things they already "know"/figured out which we haven't?

Have you met people over there who are "here" but their human self is unaware?

Why would you choose to be aware of this reality when there is a higher one?

A: The key is, at least for me, to control your soul in its entirety. At least that was the way I was taught to AP. If you want a share of wisdom, feel free to read my other answers.

One of them was my wife. She actually had a version of her over there yet she was totally unaware until she tried to AP (in which she is LEAGUES way better than me, for some reason, despite she not caring much about it)

I mean, I am aware of this reality because I was born here. I was born there as well but I became aware of it much later, so I kinda don't understand your question. Can you rephrase it?

Q: I would love guidance! I visit in my dreams but I am not in control, and would love to be able to explore and experience more!

A: Hop in my dms if you feel like it. But, like I Said before: I can give you the legs but where you walk to and how you do it will depend on you.

Q: Alright.

Legitimately, I have been trying, unsuccessfully for 26 years to astrally project.

I have read every book I could find. Gone down rabbit holes on the internet. Practiced meditation reliably, for roughly 90% of the nights, and as a mindfulness activity during the day.

Zero success. Not a single out of body experience. Not a single projection.

Not a single shred of proof that what I'm doing will work the way it is claimed.

It just so happens, I am incredibly stubborn, and enjoy the practice, so I have maintained it.

As someone who would assumedly say they are proficient at what they do, why would that be the case?

Asking with complete sincerity. Every answer I've ever gotten was "You're trying too hard."

I don't believe that is true, and I hope anyone with a modicum of integrity would agree it is a disingenuous answer.

A: Maybe you're extremely not sensitive to the "astral" side of things? Because I locked in for 6 months until I got it, but my wife took 1 HOUR, 60 mere minutes, to achieve effortlessly what took me so much trouble to master. She's extremely sensitive to all this stuff and can even see, feel and hear them even better than me. She's just extremely sceptical (she's a biologist, it took months for us to find physical proof in order for her to believe all of this) and prefers focusing on this life rather than over there. Thus, she barely APs, but she doesn't even need to AP to hear them. That's how sensitive she is Q: Where did you learn to astral project? I've been trying on and off now for 6 months and still haven't been successful.

I would love a teacher and would love to know where I can talk to you at more than just reddit.

Thank you!

A: Something roleplaying as a human randomly interacted with me and all his bullshittery caught my attention. It took me so much time just to stop thinking he was some random junkie with mental issues, but when I saw with my own eyes it's true form and all it could do I decided to take his words and actions seriously.

Also, feel free to DM.

Q: I have Hyperphantasia with projection (ability to project images with eyes open)

Images come naturally to me, I can project images also.

Things you describe just sound to me like your imagination?

Maybe you learned to access the part of the brain that controls imagery through meditation.

I also lucid dream entirely, have sleep paralysis quite often. (Which I don't believe to be supernatural, but I think many people who don't experience this often may think it is)

Is it possible to unlock Hyperphantasia like abilities through meditation?

I can see how these things can be seen as more mystical or spiritual.

There hasn't been too many studies about this.

Just curious what you think the difference is from what you are experiencing and people who's brains are wired to be hyper imaginative/visual naturally.

A: I thought I had 8th Grade Syndrome until I found people who not only were connected but met me indirectly over there and talked to me details only I knew. Also, several physical encounters with certain beings and me being stuck in other realities against my will has reinforced what was already certain for me

Q: How do you get rid of these creatures giving you night terrors? I was using the gateway tapes, and during a session I saw (what i think is) a mantis ? being doing "surgery" on my head. It had transparent tentacles with blue dots. At first, I thought it was helping me as there are multiple accounts of these beings doing some sort of energy surgery, so I just let it do its thing. But then I started having nightmares where something was inducing in me extreme anger . I wake up from these dreams feeling an anger I have never felt in my waking life. Right after I wake up from these dreams, I can see in my mind's eye multiple blue glowing dots, which is why i think it might be that mantis being doing these things to me. I can also see the blue dots during the day. Sometimes I just close my eyes and can see it, other times I can call out to it and I can see it reappear in my minds eye. I'm scared that doing the gateway tapes again will make the situation worse. Do you know how to make it stop?

A: Honestly, I don't know. We're like fish in the sea and they're the sharks, the apex. I have protection against them because, through a mark on my soul, my family from over there is able to put some sort of "barrier" that doesn't allow my energy to be detected, but in the times it has failed, I've been victim to this terrors. The horror, enhanced by the survival instinct of our body kicking in, is mind scarring, and not even I can escape from it. Sorry.

Q: Thank you for your answer. I read about someone with a similar problem here on reddit and they said that sending unconditional love during meditation to the beings helped, and they eventually went away. For what it is worth, I tried it myself and the nightmares have lessened somewhat. However, who knows what truly might be going on. Maybe it's only letting me think it's gone to fuck with me. I can still see it when I close my eyes and focus. It is unnerving to know this other being has access to all my memories and fears and plays with them to give me fucked up personalised angry dreams. Anyways, I thought I should share the unconditional love thing in case it helps someone. It has helped me somewhat, at least for the time being.

A: It was a pleasure to talk to you :)

Q: The part about "them" pulling you away from your body to feed on your fear...this has happened to me twice, most terrifying thing I've ever experienced and I think is what keeps me from achieving AP. Is there a way to protect from this or something? And what are...they? Thank you for sharing.

A: Indifference. If they open the fridge and there's nothing inside, they'll go away. You can hide your "aura" though, but every time you activate it again, they'll come by to check. If they open the fridge and there's plenty of food, welcome to How to Be Haunted 101, sort of. I don't know if other people have managed to find ways to counter them, but I'm a coward by nature so my only counter has been direct help from my family from over there. Even then, I still get scared from the presence of my own family. These things activate my flight response 100x. I think it's a reaction from the human body because I have no other way to explain why I even get scared from people I'm very close to (I mean them from the other side)

II. Mechanics of the Double Life & Inter-Universal Travel

Q: What's the one thing that's different among all your lives?

A: EVERYTHING, but if we're talking about what's the most different then I would say it's perspective in both a physical and cultural sense. The way life is lived over there is totally different, and in direct conflict, with my life here as a human, so I'm kinda in a permanent cultural conflict with this planet's way of being. Also, physically, over there I am a higher dimensional being since the universe belongs in a higher dimension. Due to this, my comprehension of that reality, and even of my own self from over there, has to be toned down to human levels because I don't have neither the mental capacity nor the vocabulary to express/understand the very nature of that reality. I'm glad I'm lucky enough to have family over there who are willing to explain things to me in a way I can understand, yet the more I understand the more conflicted I become not only due to the culture difference but due to frustration because it's so easy for humanity to do better in so many ways yet it seems we don't even try.

Q: Does your family in the other reality know that you're living a parallel life as a human on earth?

A: Yes. We're all transparent to each other. Transparency is a law in our world

Q: Meaning it's impossible to hide or lie to each other (perhaps due to telepathy)? Or is it just very frowned upon

A: Both. The air is an ocean composed of all our minds. If someone hides something, it's not normal and thus investigated

Q: If you sleep, for example, 7 hours, you have 17 hours a day to spend in your waking life. How much of that time do you devote to your second life? And where did you get your second body?

A: Sometimes I spend hours, sometimes just a few seconds to see everything is fine and I'm out. It depends on my mood tbh. My other body was born over there.

Q: What happened to the original person or being in the higher dimensional reality, before you popped in over there? Did you push them out? Are you sharing a body? Did they die before you popped in at the right moment?

A: We kinda merged. My personality there is influenced by who I was before I connected

Q: So you're reality shifting or is this a bit different?

A: I control two bodies with one consciousness at the same time

Q: Does your knowledge gained in one universe make you that much smarter than others when you go to the other universe

A: It depends. There can be coincidences, but the difference from universe to universe can be abysmal.

Q: Are there any beings you know that are in both universes besides you?

A: I've met 5 people, one of them already passed away. I'm sure there are more.

Q: Can your other universe self teleport to this universe?

A: Already explained. Yes, but not how you think.

Q: If you got smoked by a car in this world and died. Would you snap into this other reality you think? Or would that tie be severed and you would be starting from scratch in our own world here?

A: Yes, because I have a guarantee from two of my bosses that I will have to go there and fulfill some responsibilities that either I do or I'll get replaced (recycled). Of course, I chose the option where I live

Q: Important question: how are you not entirely exhausted? Even one reality is too much these days.

A: I don't process all the data at once. More like, I just physically can't.

Q: How do you travel to other parallel universes, can you take people with you and bring physical items between them too?

I reread and saw you already answered part of my question! How long did it learn to astral project? I am trying currently but have focus issues and struggle to relax due to high anxiety. Any tips?

A: Through astral projection or through dreams. A side effect of all the things I've done is that most of my dreams, when they're not random bullshit, are just me getting stuck in alternative versions of Earth. It's real because when I get back I can go back to that place and confirm what I lived during the "dream"

Q: Can you also time travel in the same space?

A: Yes but we don't mess with time unless necessary

Q: 1. Do you age in the other dimension/reality?

2. Have you ever had trouble reconnecting back with your body on earth during an AP?

A) After reading more comments cash you go into more depth about being stuck in alternate realities against your will? Is this just in your dreams or has this also happened like once you've come back into your body from an AP? Can you go more into depth about how you know it's real?

3. You mentioned night terrors and your fear being fed on, these are concepts within the confines of prison planet theory, which someone asked previously but you focused more on their simulation theory idea. What makes you believe or not believe that we are in a prison planet if there are beings that feed off of our fear?

A) How do you know another race hasn't invaded our planet and is feeding off of our division/fear etc?

B) With the admittance of ET's/ other dimensional beings by elected officials, how do we know that they are not persuading, negatively or positively, or in control of our government?

C) The idea of shredding souls and recycling is a huge aspect of prison planet theory, what makes you think this does or doesn't have to do with prison planet theory?

4. Can you go more into depth about the warping of reality for infinite resources, is it like instant manifestation?

5. Is the galactic federation real?

6. More of a comment than a question but basically Rick and Morty is real life 😂

7. You mentioned teleportation in another comment. Do you teleport by a device or simply by thinking on it. Why can't we teleport on earth?

A) are there other abilities relevant like telekinesis, telepathy etc and does everyone use them? If so are these abilities learned or intrinsic?

B) Can you go more into depth about APing into real earth places live in real time? Sounds like teleportation to me! What do you mean the other body collapses on the other side how do you know this?

8. Where did you come across this idea of souls being shredded? Since you have not physically died how would you know?

9. In this second body, are you sharing it with another soul or are you tapping into your “higher self” and attaching to another body “you” inhabit?

10. What about quantum physics? It seems like this could be how you are able to experience both realities i.e. particle entanglement.

I hope these questions make sense to all who read them beside OP. I pulled from many other comments I read after spending about an hour + reading through them all. Thank you! This has fun and interesting to say the least.

A: 1) Yes

2) Not really, but yes the other way around. If something significant related to energy happens, I tend to not be able to withstand it (I get migraines, there was even one time where my whole body froze in so much pain the only thing I could “move” was the tears running down my face) or not being able to connect at all. I’ve only been stuck in other realities because, when I sleep, I send my entire soul and consciousness over there (aka I don’t sleep, I’m just awake somewhere else), but there are times where the “current” pushes me away from my destination and I end up stuck in other universes. How do I know they’re real? Because there are things, places, people from here that I’ve seen there that are different yet the same. And there was this one occasion where I was trapped for so long that when I woke up (I only slept besides my wife for half an hour but I was trapped for almost a week) I couldn’t notice the difference between realities and the first thing I did was to grab my wife and start crying and beg for forgiveness because, in that reality, our kid was killed because of me (I later found it it wasn’t because of me, but I didn’t know at the time). I know they’re not a dream because my dreams are pure bullshit and nonsense. Sometimes I wake up from a dream and I’m like “wtf did I just see?”

3) The way things are being put, and the way I’ve answered, saying that this planet is a prison of sorts makes total sense, with our freedom of choice being compromised and our actions monitored 24/7.

3-A) There are races among us. I’ve met some, and it didn’t end well. It wouldn’t surprise me if they came first and we’re here because of them, be it directly or indirectly, but I can’t confirm or deny. All I know is that they’re way older than our entire evolution as a species.

3-B) I cannot say they have influence in politics, cuz I haven’t seen it directly (I’m a person that needs to see to believe), but I can say that, when I infiltrated Area 51 last year, the three alien dudes I met told me they were helping the USA military by providing technology. I asked why they would give such a stupid and violent race who turns all knowledge into weapons even more dangerous knowledge for them to make even stronger weapons, and their answer was something like “We’re giving them the knowledge to evolve as a species; if they destroy themselves with it, that’s on them not on us”.

3-C) Because the shredding doesn’t happen on a planetary scale, but on a multiversal one. It involves all forms of life

4) We cannot perceive the dimensions below us exactly as they are, but it's kinda close. You know a piece of paper is 2D, and you can do many things with it. You can even transform it, for example, in ash, even if it's irreversible. Hell, you can even make a 3D object out of it (I think it's called origami, awesome art btw). You can do it because it's an object from a lower dimension. Same with us over there. We can take anything from any dimension below and do whatever the fuck we want with it even in an atomic level. We can take atoms from the air and make a hot dog with them. For humans, that's just reality warping tbh

5) IDK, I haven't pushed my nose in any kind of politics from Earth, be it in-planet or out of it

6) Haven't seen that series

7) "Manual" teleportation is just moving your particles from one place to another. By controlling matter you can reach a level of even controlling your own matter. Just move it around and reassemble yourself. Not a big deal. You won't get unconscious because, to reach that level, you need a level of consciousness that transcends matter itself, so again: not a big deal. "External" teleportation is even easier: go to a place, make a device that moves particles, go back and do the same. Connect the two devices and you have a gate (mind you, I'm dumbing it down so it's easy to explain, there is a LOT MORE to this but I cannot put it into words cuz I don't understand it). Now you can teleport extremely long distances.

7-A) What you call abilities some races just have them by default. Just like we humans heal faster when sleeping, or are even able to be aware of themselves (that's not common at all), some races can evolve constantly, talk mind-to-mind, or even "melt" themselves into the dimensions as a defense mechanism. They're not abilities, just simple features from simple creatures.

7-B) This is a long ass comment, answering this part will make it a book. Also, why? And it's not TP because when I AP I don't leave my body 100%: I leave a fraction of my consciousness behind which is linked to my soul. See it more like I'm sending my soul as a drone, and I can see what happens remotely with my eyes open (it's better when you close them, trust me).

8) I visited the place where the souls get shredded and I saw souls getting shredded and reassembled. I'm not the kind of guy that tells something because someone else said it. All I'm saying in this post is cuz I saw it and lived it. I have to see to believe.

9) The other body was a person before I connected. When I connected, our consciousness merged. Here I am me, but there I am me/him. I'm still me but I have the memories, knowledge, experience, body and personality from the guy who was before me, combined with my consciousness. I wonder if it works the other way around, him being himself but having all those things he gained from me combined in his mind. Well, our mind.

10) Idk about quantum physics and I've decided that learning anything from humans will be, at best, a waste of time (it will be only useful as long as I'm human) because humanity's knowledge stems from their perception, and even their perception is flawed. We tend to simplify whatever we find complicated so we can understand it, and just by simplifying you're taking away crucial parts of the true side of the nature of things. Worse: humans have limited perception. Why would I take, let's say, astronomy seriously word by word when most of it comes from observation? People already take it as truth that black holes are singularities that "eat" everything and they can slow time, when there's no personal experience/observation regarding ANY OF THEM? All that comes from conclusions reached through math that was also learned by perception. What would you think if I were to tell you that black holes are, in reality, just holes in the fabric of the universe? Thanks to what happened with the "Big Bang", the universe is so weak that even the death of stars, which is supposed to be a common thing in this universe, can physically harm it. Those explosions, called supernovas, when they don't create other celestial objects, like neutron stars etc, like they're supposed to do (following the fact that everything is recycled in life, even the non-living), can actually be strong enough to harm the universe's "skin". Of course it "eats" everything it touches, even light: all that's going in is fucking leaking outside the universe. But science won't get to the bottom of this because we don't have any means of doing so. We can barely leave our own atmosphere! They will believe that black holes compress all that they eat because of gravity, that there must be white holes because whatever goes in must go out, or even that they can have universes inside. Bunch on nonsense, tbh. I just follow the physics from that other world since they have a wider and more accurate perspective regarding the true nature of things, even if I don't understand them at all (they try to explain but I'm dumb ASF). I'm just a traveler, not a scientist.

Q: Hey man! Been amazed since I read first yesterday. And a lot of questions have been swirling around. I will just write down a couple which are on my mind rn.

At what time in our universe do you travel?

Is the travel a literal journey or like a teleport?

How do keep track of time and is there a concept of time at the place where your other family is?

Who told you about the nature of the beings feeding on our fears?

Have you ever gotten lost and needed more time or effort to get back to either universe?

Thanks a lot in advance.

A: I don't travel often anymore; I transfer from here to there. Last time I traveled was when I got inside a USA military base to confirm some suspicions I had, and I remember it was during the afternoon, around 1-2pm. That happened 2 and a half years ago.

It depends. If I'm traveling, it's a journey at high speed, but I learned to teleport to places I've already been to save some time

Over there I keep track of time using a clock based on human tech, but I'm the only one who cares about time. No one else seems to bother with it

I met and befriended a me from another timeline and these things were a common threat to that world's population (for some reason, these creatures are not affected by timelines, no matter the world, the dimension or the universe, they're all the same species with the same characteristics) and that me dedicated his life to the study and suppression of those creatures. I learned all I know of these creatures from him.

Fun fact: the COVID variant from his world caused humanity's extinction (it was a virus that made people's flesh fall from the bone in just a few hours) He was one of the few survivors, living underground in a forest, but it eventually caught up to him. I saw him die.

Yes, I think I can recall 17 times I've been lost and trapped in other universes.

Q: I'm fascinated. Can you please describe in what ways they are higher dimensional? How is life different over there? What do they do better as humanity in that world?

A: I'll try not to write a novel....

We're higher dimensional because, duh, we belong in a higher plane of existence composed of the previous planes from below. Our very dimension here is nothing but a piece of an atom over there. Life proliferates everywhere, even up there. For us, being this way is normal.

As to our differences in life.... You'll need to ask away. The differences are so vast that I may never have enough space to tell everything. And, in my opinion, we do everything better EXCEPT in love and empathy towards lower beings. As high Ds, reproduction or even physical contact is unwanted, unwelcomed and extremely awkward. Thanks to me and the way I've introduced the human way of physical interaction to that world, let's say hugs, kisses, and touching overall is kinda acceptable as long as there's feelings and meaning behind it. If not, you'll probably be ignored or taken by crazy for a while. Also, just like humans don't give a fuck if they crush insects or kill bacteria when walking, we tend to not care about lower Ds. "Maybe our actions can be the bane of entire civilizations or even universes, but we're high Ds, right? They died as collateral. Am I supposed to not live so that others could live?" Those are moral questions that tend to have importance yet are dismissed at the same time. Some care about lower Ds, some don't. Of course, my family is from the ones who care. If not, I wouldn't be here talking rn

Q: Do you ever get the sense that what you are doing in the other parallel space is somehow reflecting and altering your current human capacity without your awareness?

A: It does. To what extent? That's food for thought, but I've seen the changes

III. Life, Society & Nature of the Other Universe

Q: 1. describe location

2. animal life forms if any

3. do they have plants?

A: 1. I'll go with the easiest: the Enenelfians Capital. It looks like a skyscraper made of vines and a huge flower that thousands upon thousands of petals. Those petals fall periodically like rainfall. Whenever petals rain, they make a festival which involves gliding and "surfing" through the air using the petals. In the center of the flower lies the Capital, which kinda looks like some sort of fortress, but the walls and buildings around them are embedded in the flower yet dissipate once they reach a certain height. The main building, in the backend of the city, is the Enenelfian Queen's house and it looks like a tower, but this one doesn't dissipate. This tower-looking structure is the only school our world has.

2. My last encounter with an animal was some sort of black, chicken-looking ground bird that was mating with another bird. The feathers in the body were like moving black mud, its head was vertically flat, the body totally round, and its legs had fingers in every direction, even coming down from the leg itself and acting as some sort of omnidirectional "tripod". When the "tail" "opened", several blue appendages emerged from some orifices and started to make some rhythm movements that were imitated by the mating partner.

3. I created some. I call them "Boom Flowers". Their garden lies at the bottom of the "ocean". They bloom and die every few seconds. Whenever they bloom, the petals close and compress, taking a torpedo-looking shape, then are "launched" upwards to the surface. Once out of the "water" (it's not water but for understanding's sake let's assume it is), they explode releasing the equivalent of "pollen grenades" that sink rapidly and, once at the bottom, it fertilizes itself and turns into another flower within seconds. The place is extremely dangerous from above, but a surreal experience if watched from the bottom of the ocean. Of course, it has human thematic because it was I who engineered them. They make some good permanent firework visuals.

Q: What is daily life like over in the other universe?

A: There are billions of races living in the same world, so the concept of "daily life" is extremely subjective.

At least in my case, I spend the day mostly relaxing, spending time with family, or, when the time requires it, doing "raids" (helping other worlds with whatever they need). I have a position of high authority so I'm allowed to "raid"

Q: Can you elaborate? What is a "raid", what's done during one? Care to share a story of a specific raid?

A: I can use the word "invasion" because it kinda looks like one (a fleet of ships surrounding a planet sort of thing) but we don't negatively affect civilizations unless the dominant civilization has done so with other ones, since races invading and taking control of other worlds "just because" is actually a thing.

My latest "raid" (I named it like that due to the absence of a better word) was yesterday around 6:14pm (my country's time) and lasted around 3-4 hours, where, after we picked a place, under the instructions of my "boss", I teleported a bunch of creatures over there and me and my team killed them all. Those creatures are what I call "predators", which are beings who are part of the "universal food chain" in the sense that they eradicate stagnant civilizations, but since lately there's an overabundance of them, some had to be killed to keep the balance in check. If not, they start feeding from worlds that aren't meant to be "food"

Q: Do they have reddit and porn over there? Universal healthcare? Does Israel have the usa by the balls over there?

A: It's not Earth so... Yeah, no Reddit, no Israel, no USA.

There's no porn in the sense of the gathering and distribution of sexual content, but since there's no concept of nudity, it's extremely common seeing people living their lives naked. While there's a sense of privacy, it's not a surprise at all to be minding your own business and catching random people fucking on a random corner. It's actually very normal.

There's no need for healthcare though, there are no diseases. The thing that comes even remotely close to a hospital is a sort of "system" that people who are aware their death is imminent go to in order to not die. There, whatever biology they have is mimicked and replaced by machinery, and their minds are uploaded to the "core" of the system then transferred into that body. The cool part is that, even though they're "mechs", there's literally no difference between the mechanical and biological body. The imitation is perfect.

Q: Is there scarcity? Billionaires? An afterlife? Religion? Do they have a Dyson sphere around their sun?

A: There are infinite resources, mostly because of extreme efficiency, and exploiting the warping of reality that can be caused by the difference in dimensionality.

There's no concept of money: people have what they want whenever they want.

The afterlife is rocket science. I can explain it if you want, but it will be extremely simplified

Religion is existent, but scarce. It is not encouraged but not illegal as well. People need to believe something no matter the universe they come from, apparently. The religion is mostly based around our leader though

No need for any Dyson sphere. The stars are collected and their energy is absorbed inside the planet.

Q: Wow so AI as consciousness is very real?

A: The replication of a living consciousness is not considered "Artificial Intelligence". We do have AIs, but they are created from scratch, not using life as a template, and are used more as tools/employees. Well... Most of the time.

Q: I'm still reading through the comments, so if someone has already asked these, don't worry about answering it again!

Are there children there? If there are children, are they at all similar to Earth children?

Do people age like they do on Earth?

Do people read books there? Are there fictional/story books, if so? Is there a version of television shows and movies, or is there a similar form of entertainment there?

A: Yes, there are children.

Similar in what way? Shape? Development?

Not really. There are those who age linearly, like us, but those are mostly low dimensional. The high dimensional ones technically don't age. We all transcend time.

Books? Constructs of paper and stuff, no, but there is an entire race, the Enenelfians, whose life purpose is to both bring peace to others and save their life stories into verbal tales they tell anyone as long as they are asked to do so. Also, there's a building I call the Vault of Knowledge where there's an AI that will connect with your consciousness and bring all the data you want to you in physical form, whether it be places, objects, weapons, books, etc ...

Also, there's an entire building called Arcadia where all races can spend time together and share their games, movies, and all types of content as long as it's entertainment. There are also places for music, theme parks, racetracks, and PRAEGRESUS: a digital multiverse similar to Arcadia but, ofc, digital.

Fun fact: I created/helped create most of those things. The culture was different so I wanted to bring with me the good stuff from earth so I could share it with others. People happened to love it, but there are tons more stuff I can't even put into words.

Q: What do you look like in the other universe?

A: It depends. I'm part of a race of hybrids that are in constant evolution. Also, since I'm a conceptual existence, I can shape myself however I want. I guess the real answer is "shapeless"?

Q: You mentioned not being human over there. What are you on the other side?

Also, when a universe has a problem and is disposed of, where does it go and how does that work?

Thx👍

A: I'm a hybrid, offspring of two creatures who weren't meant to have offspring together due to them being biological polar opposites. Somehow, they made it work

A "titan" just picks the universe and sends it into some sort of "mechanism" that will "drive" the universe into a "pit" where it will stay on queue, shrinking until the core's left, but since the core can't exist without the environment of its own universe, it will collapse into nothingness.

Q: Do you play video games and or use drugs in this reality? Were you born in the other reality or did you inherit something like an avatar?

Final random question, how many fingers do you have in the other reality, what do your hands look like? The reason I ask this is personal and related to some experiences I've had.

A: I'm a gamer, and I haven't used drugs yet. Both: I was born there but when I connected, that other body became my "avatar"

I am shapeless, but I tend to have 5 fingers in my four limbs, yet, tbh, walking with 3 fingers at front and 2 at the back of the foot feels so much better than just with all 5 at front LOL

I have talons tho, idk if that helps you with something

Q: Is there a concept of suffering and bondage ?

A: Unfortunately, yes. Extremely common. Not in that world though

Q: 1. Do they have physical diseases?

2. Have they already progressed to oneness as a race (which humanity has failed) peace, no wars etc?

A: 1) Not really disease in the ways they act here, but some races and species can have negative effects on others

2) Internally, yes, even though we simulate wars between us just to keep ourselves entertained (nothing personal), but sometimes we do have to get up and fight some outsiders

Q: Do the beings in the other universe know of this/our Earth universe? If yes, what are their general/average opinion about our life?

Safe travels.

A: To the extent of my knowledge, yes they do, but I don't know many people who do though.

Do you mean our life (universal scale) or our life here on Earth?

Q: If you could, for both.

A: Regarding life in our universe, we don't know much about it. Feel free to see the context in the other comments, but I only saw our universe's core's "DNA" and discovered the "biggest" atom has 218 electrons so there are elements we haven't/can't discover (since they don't exist in this world I guess) and that there are life forms that, for me, might be very interesting to see. Unfortunately, our life is "below average" in their standards. Specifically since it is known that the highest dimension our universe has is the 8th. In a multiversal scale, those are rookie numbers.

About humans though... Most of those who know the full context of my race see me with pity. Who wouldn't? But yeah... I guess a simple look talks more than words, right? If not, my family believes we are "simple yet contradictory creatures who have immense potential yet are limited by life itself "

Q: 1) what are politics like over there (if any)?

2) is religion a thing?

3) do you guys have the equivalent of aliens as we do here (ie greys)?

4) what dimensions are above yours?

5) how is life and death perceived?

6) is wealth and poverty a thing?

7) what does one learn in schools?

8) do we share the same laws of physics?

9) what's your biggest fear over there?

10) how is time perceived?

A: I've answered most of this already and several times by now (go search the comments), so I'll be brief and non detailed:

- 1) They are divided in several laws that just incentivise people to enjoy life as much as they can without disturbing other people's lives.
 - 2) It's optional. We don't incentivise it, but we haven't banned it either because most races have their own flavor of "spiritual needs".
 - 3) In that world, everyone is alien. There are countless races coexisting under the same atmosphere. Some are more weird than others. It's a matter of perspective.
 - 4) Dimensions aren't what humans actually think they are. Due to my job, and Shiontioruk's, the planet works as some sort of sanctuary for any creature in any dimension in any universe, and it's actually physically "connected" to the Multiverse (the being) so, in a sense, we have all the dimensions included in our "energetic grid". Courtesy of the multiverse's (the being) assistance. To strictly answer your question: only one dimension is above "ours"; we haven't "updated" yet
 - 5) A necessary part of the cycle of one's existence.
 - 6) There's no economy there
 - 7) About oneself, about others, and how to interact with both without disrupting the harmony
 - 8) Not at all. Each universe acts and looks different
 - 9) Mistakes. Over there, every action can cause unnecessary deaths at a huge scale. It's like living in a world of glass and trying not to break anything. All my actions are taken with carefulness and awareness.
 - 10) We see time as some sort of non-static, non-organic "dimension" that not only connects all the Multiverse (the place) but is also affected by each individual universe: it's like as if each universe had its own "mass" and such "mass" warped time around that universe. That's the way we explain the time difference between universes (dumbed down into human words)
-

Q: If everyone in other universes are aware of the harsh realities of life after death and how our souls are only meant to recycle, how do they perceive life then and what helps them cope, except for religion?

Also, what about coincidences and feeling of “meant to be”? Is our life not pre written?

A: People from other universes don't see death as a bad thing. In fact, many choose it, despite being immune to old age, because they see it as closure. Life, for them (in human terms) is a theater of graces and disgraces. Death is the curtain call, the end of it all, and the hope that the next hosts will have the pleasure of living life the way they did before.

Regarding coincidences, they're just that: coincidences. The "peak" in a butterfly effect that we happened to find a pattern we could recognize

Q: 1. Is Epstein there?

2. Was Epstein an ordinary human or a different entity?

A: It isn't Earth. There are humans, but just refugees from other Earth variants

IV. Multiverse Structure, Physics & The Core DNA

Q: This has been very helpful and insightful. I would love to learn from you.

I only recently started to 'practice' but no projection yet that I remember at least.

May I ask two more questions if that's okay:

1. What do you mean by core DNA and who are these few humans that can access it?

2. Is the concept of manifesting true? As in being able to change one's experience of reality through one's concentrated thought and believing in the desired outcome as if in the present moment.

A: 1) Every core of every universe has the "prime matter", the primordial blocks of life. As an example, if an universe's life is composed of oxygen, carbon and helium, that's all you'll find inside the core. That's the "DNA". There's no human that has access to any core's DNA besides me (and I'm not human over there either so...) The usual beings who have access to it, I call them "Titans" and they are the IT guys who check the PCs to see if there's anything wrong, but with universes. The difference is that if an universe has an issue, it is not fixed but disposed of and replaced by a new one.

2) I am not sure. I can't give you a certain answer on this topic. Maybe manifesting results with our own willpower is us unconsciously tapping into our true potential but idk tbh. I barely know anything about humans

Q: What makes you think you're the only person with access to the core DNA?

A: I am not the only person with access to the core's DNA. I am certain I'm the only human though, because the other ones are those "titans" and none of them are human. When I meet another human with knowledge of the core's DNA I'll then say I'm not the only one. Also I can only see the DNA, not interact with it like they do. Don't think I'm equal to them. I'll never be

Q: If you are the only human who can access cores DNA but you are not actually human, then how can you teach someone human how to astral project like you do who doesn't have the same talent or tools/make up in matter/ etc

A: The core's DNA has no effect on any form of life besides it's composition. It's just the building block of all life. If the DNA is made of cement and bubblegum, expect that universe to have life based on either of them or a combination of both. No form of life with any form of matter or composition different from the DNA can enter the universe, unless they're a "titan".

Also, I'm 100% human, I just have control over another body in another dimension and live two lives at once

Q: Not meant by whom to be food?

A: The Multiverse. Just as we, humans, are walking meat machines with a universe, or even multiple universes, inside, the multiverse is just a living organism of a cosmic scale. Everything has rules, and it is that being who makes them.

AND BEFORE YOU SAY "THATS GOD!!"

Maybe? It's not Yahweh though, but it certainly is a "god". Besides, humans give the title of "god" to everything that has more power than them so it's kinda nonsense at this point, but to each their own

Q: Has anyone or anything figured out how existence came to be? Like, how did the first instance of anything ever existing happen?

A: Through a loop between creator and creation. At least in our multiverse cluster. I don't know about the others because I haven't seen any other

Q: What is the science behind this?

A: Please elaborate so I can elaborate as well

Q: I'm going to elaborate, maybe the commenter can later. Did you use scientific theory to prove that what you are claiming is true? Like a control/ experiment you've done and what did that look like?

A: Nope, but for years I thought I was crazy, with some 8th Grade Syndrome or something. Until hurricane Maria forced me to reconnect with some friends, and one night I opened myself to one of them regarding all these experiences and, instead of calling me crazy for using drugs, he said "Oh, so you were at --- doing --- and you looked like ----? Dude, I was in the town over the mountain, we all saw it?" How THE FUCK he knew all that when I just talked to him without even saying details? That's when I learned that no only I wasn't crazy, but I wasn't alone.

And there has been MANY other physical stuff regarding these experiences of mine that had led me to believe it is all true, but no. I haven't used the scientific method nor will I trust it since I've learned our knowledge, humanity's knowledge, comes from perspective. Meaning, if there's something that we cannot see, we skip it entirely from the equation, thus making the results flawed.

Q: Thanks for sharing your experience. I'll ask something very different compared to the questions you already received.

I see you mentioned that some of your experience is on a "higher dimension". My question is the following:

Q1) Have you had access to technical knowledge regarding the physics involved in your experience? I mean information about the nature of reality. What is the definition of a "higher dimension". Not from your experience, but more from a theoretical view.

Q2) If your answer to the first question is negative, are you willing to try to access that information?

Q3) Many people experiencing AP have their view about what UFOs are. Do you have any view and/or experience related to the topic?

Thanks!

A: Your question is absolutely intriguing and I wish I could answer, but I truly do not understand how there seems to be a connection between a low D mind and a high D body through AP. All I can say is that the only thing I'm effective in in its interpretation is communication. The other senses are near null. I barely see any shapes, when I touch I can't feel it and when I taste there's no flavor. I do hear, but mostly because most conversations are mind to mind. There must be some reasons, some explanation as to why things are this way, but they have avoided me to this very day. My apologies

I do have my views on aliens. They're just watchers. If we reach a certain level of threat, they'll kill us. That's the gist of it

V. Humanity's Origins, Purpose & Practical Advice

Q: Since you mentioned being on different dimensions and planes, what do you think according to human soul perspective is our purpose on this planet. Are we here just hustle and make ends meet or there's more to it?

A: I can't tell you about the human soul perspective, but I can tell you about an objective perspective. As a request I made, my family researched our race (including an "interview" with our universe's "core") and found some interesting things. We, who now are Homo Sapiens, are but the remnants of an ancient civilization: remnants who happened to evolve into a new civilization. Our ancestors, who I call "true humans", were advanced ASF and had universal coverage (hard to believe since we can barely even leave this world). Apparently, they were part of the "I conquer worlds because I can" troupe and became a plague at a universal scale, but one day they came into conflict with a being from outside the universe, escalated things, fucked around and found out, getting themselves almost extinct along with more than half our universe. I have no clue how there were survivors, if we humans exist because the survivors devolved or something. Idk. There are many things we have to uncover. What we know is that that creature wiped the floor with the "true humans" and took more than half our universe with it. There are remnants of that occurrence that we have discovered; our society calls it "Big Bang" (lame ass name, in my opinion).

Fun fact: science says our universe is expanding, and it is true, but the real reason it's expanding is because it's still healing from that confrontation almost 14 billion years ago. Our universe is kinda big in scale compared to other universes. Also, what we know as "observable universe" is merely ~4.6% of our whole universe. That's how primitive our technology is. It's amazing we have managed to even see that far taking in consideration we have the means to have infinite energy yet we still use dead ancient animals as fuel.

Another fun fact: we are actually 5-D, but for some reason we have been "nerfed". How? Why? I'm still researching. All I know is that there are a lot, and I say A LOT, of races monitoring us. I talked with three individuals from one of those races several months ago. Once we reach a point of evolution where we're capable AND WILLING to harm other worlds/civilizations, they'll exterminate us in order to avoid the return of the "true humanity"... even though the possibility of our self-extinction is consolidating day by day. All in the name of profit, right?

Q: Thank you for sharing. I heard there are many timelines going on all at once and we live in a parallel reality. They say Aliens are us human like us but live in a different timeline and higher dimension more advanced. Will people here find out the truth about Aliens by next year?

A: I don't know the future, but I bet if people find out about aliens, most won't give a shit. Knowing about aliens won't pay the bills. That's how desensitized we humans are.

Q: I'm curious about the races that are "monitoring" us. Are these the UFO's we see in the skies? Are they the alien Grays? What do they look like? Do they watch us on a TV device or do they roam among us in disguise? And why do they watch us instead of intervening and helping us? Because I feel we are at peak chaos level in the world right now, and we sure could use a divine or alien intervention.

A: I don't know who they are, haven't met them directly. I just know they're here because of a conversation I had with 3 of them once.

And why are they watching? Because their job is to destroy us if our technology advances enough without leaving our greed and willingness for destruction behind. They're not saviors. If we kill each other, they're free to go home, I believe. Again: haven't talked to them

Q: You dont know who or what they are but you had a conversation with 3 of them. Help me understand...

A: The previous person mentioned a bunch of random alien names that I'm totally unfamiliar with. I don't know who they are. All I know is that I had an encounter with three random aliens a while ago during my second time APing inside Area 51 to see what they were cooking down there. I don't know who they were or with who they were affiliated with. I just had a conversation with them, we reached an agreement and then we went our separate ways

Q: Can you ask the beings what we as humans on this earth can do to better ourselves and escape the necessity of capitalism?

A: I asked them for a sentence.

"Solidarity. By understanding that you're all more similar than different and helping everyone with experiences instead of being on top of each other".

Word for word what Shiontioruk said. Pretty simple, right? Yet common sense is extremely scarce these days.

Q: Is there a way to expand our consciousness on this plane of reality without traveling to other universes?

How to we make the most of our time here?

How has your day to day life in this universe changed since you've been to the other one?

A: 1) I can't really answer. By expanding your consciousness, you tap into our true nature (we're 5D) and with higher dimensionality comes perks that belong to each dimension. Diluting into other universes/tapping into other timelines comes within the perks. I guess the difference is the individual's control over these bonuses. Someone who can't control them will get lost LITERALLY in time. That's why this AP stuff, while it sounds cool, is dangerous ASF

2) Like the laws in that world say: "Be selfish and search for your happiness as long as you don't rob others of theirs".

3) Welp, I'm antisocial ASF because most trends, interactions, and just usual things humans do on a daily basis are pure cringe. If you knew how billions of races coexist inside a planet Peacefully while here on Earth there are gender wars and economic struggles... Things that sound serious but are so easily solvable if only we focus on ourselves instead of in our wallets, well, the rich's wallet in this case. By focusing on ourselves as a race, not as individuals, is where the change will come. By changing the macro, the micro will follow on its own.

Q: Why are you on Reddit?

A: I have a human life over here. Why is it so strange to have social media?

Q: Wow, I'm really fascinated reading your replies. Thank you for doing this and taking the time.

- 1. Do you find it difficult to detach from the other universe?
- 2. Does one feel more real than the other?
- 3. Do you know why you're on earth? If you do know, how did you find out and was it your decision to be here?
- 4. What's something you've learnt from your experiences, that completely changed your life for the better, here on earth.
- 5. When you project into a universe in the same dimension level as us, are you taking over the body of you in that world? Or someone else? Do you even exist in that reality?
- 6. If we all do exist in parallel universes, have you sought out anyone you know from here?
- 7. What does everyone look like in the higher dimension?
- 8. Have you ever stayed within this universe but travelled through time?
- 9. Do you know if every human has guides looking out for them?
- 10. Have you ever travelled somewhere and loved it so much but not been able to get back?

11. Does earth look different in each place?

12. Has anywhere else been in as big of a shamble as earth is atm 😞

13. What's the best piece of advice you can give, because of all the worlds you've seen? Or has your other family told you anything profound you'd like to share?

14. How long have you been living the double lives? How do you have time to do anything or sleep?

Sorry that's so many questions 😊 I'll stop now otherwise I may never. Thank you again.

ETA just two more, forgive me

15. You mentioned in a response that on earth we have access to infinite energy. Do you know what that energy is or how we get it?

16. The ancient civilisation of "true humans" you mentioned, is that to do with Atlantis?

A: 1) Yes

2) There feels more real

3) I know why I'm here, and I don't like it but I have no choice and yes, it is against my will. It's a personal matter.

4) For the better? I learned to value life and every individual who is part of it, no matter how big or small that being is. It is counterproductive since my job over there requires me to ignore all of it

5) My mind tends to take possession of my version of that universe, but it happens randomly and has nothing to do with any of my intentions or interests. Call it a side effect.

6) Yes, I've met the variants

7) Really depends on the species, but bipedal forms are not that common.

8) Did it once. Never again.

9) I do not.

10) Go back to that place? ...yeah

11) Yes

12) There are worlds with bigger problems. There are worlds with no issues at all

13) With all I've got to know throughout the years, the best I can say is that, as a race with short life time, we spend more time trying to know how to live than just living. Instead of imitating, impersonating or controlling others, we should spend our lives being who we want to be and find our happiness as long as it doesn't take it from someone else. Once we learn about solidarity, harmony and peace, we will achieve what life is truly meant to be

14) Around 14 years. I'm connected 100% of the time but I'm not 100% conscious of what happens there unless I pay attention. It's like having a TV in the background. I do travel there at night when sleeping, but sometimes I drift and get stuck in other universes.

Q: Qué enseñanza nos dejas. [What lesson do you leave us with?]

A: Los humanos tienen todo lo que necesitan para aprender lo necesario para ser una raza "hecha y derecha", simplemente no quieren porque basan sus vidas en el consumismo en vez de en la coexistencia.

[Humans have everything they need to learn what is necessary to be a "full-fledged" race; they simply don't want to because they base their lives on consumerism instead of on coexistence.]

Q: This reply indicates you have no idea how cosmology, astronomy or biological evolution works.

A: This reply indicates that you assume our actual knowledge is the absolute truth of the cosmos. How can you say what you see is real when you can't even see half the color spectrum an insect can? Damn, humans live with dogs and can't even see what they see. Our truth, as humans, stems from our perspective. The perspective I'm bringing comes from me not only as a soul doing AP but as another being, totally devoid of the human bias and perspective. It's totally understandable that you don't agree, and neither would any scientific or biologist that can talk to me, but the knowledge I'm bringing will be discovered in time... If it hasn't already, been filed away by the ones who control the data society sees on a daily basis on the screens and websites they provide

VI. Theology, Religion & Spiritual Entities

Q: Could you try to describe your understanding and opinion of God?

A: I can give you understanding, opinion and experience regarding this "God" you talk about (assuming you are referring to Yahwveh)

1) "God", here on Earth, is a concept that humans use to fill the gaps in their knowledge that are incapable of being filled due to our inability to bring ourselves those answers. It's also one of the most profitable businesses available, having a complete monopoly in the monetization of humanity's spiritual needs

2) In my opinion, as a human, here on Earth "God" is a necessary evil. It easily answers everything and makes life easier for those who are blessed with the ignorance of not knowing the true "cruelty" of how the universe, and life in general, really works

3) The interesting part is that I met this "God", this "Yahwveh" in another universe. Exactly as described in the bible, with many other characteristics only in-person experience can bring. I don't wanna get more negative karma, since humans are obviously biased towards this " God", so I'll only say my meeting with IT wasn't... pleasant... Also it brings the question: if IT doesn't exist in this universe, why OUR world's most prominent religion comes from another universe? Maybe someone did what I'm doing but in reverse, and way earlier than me? Maybe he/she/it managed to actually incarnate in this universe, in this world? Questions I don't have answers for but eat me up at night

Q: I am super curious why meeting God was unpleasant, can you elaborate?

A: I don't wanna create a war with the believers. I'll just say the picture and the actual person didn't match.

Q: What is your take on Jesus being God ?

A: I won't talk about it because it's 2026 and some people cannot handle these kinds of conversations, but the term "god" is an extremely abstract construct that humans use to easily fill a gap in their knowledge that they know cannot be filled by them. In every aspect of the word, due to the dimensional difference, even a random bird from up there will be "god" for humans just like we are "gods" for 2D beings (at least those that we know are artificial)

Q: Fascinating read! Your answers sound legit. You seem like a very grounded individual experiencing a supernatural life. Kudos. Do the alien races we know of (Reptilians, The Greys, Andromedans, Pleiadians etc) really exist how we claim they do?

A: I don't know about them besides the Reptilians. Also, I spent some days with a civilization that lived inside Earth (there's a hole I think in the north pole, no human is allowed by the government to trespass). Last time I visited, they made a portal to go away because USA was fucking with them over and over and they were done with them but didn't want to fight back. I wonder how things are now.

I did meet three aliens in my second breach to Area 51, who appeared to stop me. I talked to them for a while. They looked humanoid, blonde, their faces too perfect but no expressions nor eyebrows, clothes white with a golden line vertically dividing the middle, and like 12 feet tall. I believe they were 5D as well? Idk. Do they sound familiar?

Also, I haven't talked about dragons. Dragons are real, and too gentle to give humans the "find out" after so much fucking around

Q: As someone who dabbles in the occult and magic. I've wanted to try astral projection, but I'm concerned about getting lost on the astral plane and/or encountering evil entities who might try to harm me. How concerned should I be?

A: Very. Just like there are animals who only feed on flesh, there are things who only feed from feelings (biased towards fear btw) and even intent itself. Be careful not to be detected, but I guess they'll find you sooner or later. I am protected 24/7 and still got attacked twice, and have had 4 face-to-face physical confrontation with those things as well.

Q: If our souls get shredded, is our existence on earth meaningless? The love I have for my spouse, my children - all for nothing?

A: Your life's meaning will be entirely dependent on what meaning you'll give it, but in the bigger picture, we're all just fuel for the multiverse. Our purpose is to exist, multiply and die. Everything in between is entirely subjective

Q: I can't accept that. What machine are we feeding? What is harvesting our efforts in overcoming evil with love? "Your life is what you make it" seems so trivial and cheapens this exhausting experience. If what you say is true...what a waste.

A: The multiverse is a living being. The death of all life is what feeds it, but through life's reproduction, the energy cycle is self-sustaining. I understand your point and frustration, but I think life is meant to be enjoyed while it lasts. If you had a good life, why would you need an afterlife if you died satisfied and with no regrets? I think the concept of afterlife stems from the hope of having another chance at getting a better life because the life the person has is insufficient or makes it unhappy. Otherwise, it doesn't make sense to me. Not like the cruel cycle feels any empathy for any of us. We are born, we live, we multiply, we grow old, we die, we wait, we're recycled. Rinse and repeat.

Q: No, I wan an afterlife to return to the collective and still be connected with the people I love here, like my children.

A: I hope you find what you crave for. I only know things from a macro perspective, but I lack the knowledge or the interest to investigate if there are lower beings who actively modify the course of life of biological races (according to other comments, there apparently are some). I hope you're one of those lucky enough to experience what others have experienced regarding this matter. I just know that, in the very end, even universes have a date of expiration. Death is inevitable, even for those 5 who run the multiverse from "above"

Q: [deleted]

A: Life is a way for the multiverse to self-sustain. Through life we multiply and through death we energized the multiverse.

I don't understand the other half of the question

Q: Could you explain the afterlife, please? Even if it is simplified, I am so curious.

Thank you for doing this! Everything is super interesting.

A: Copy paste from the other comment:

"We all are meant to be recycled (in human terms, our souls will be sent to a place where it will be shredded to pieces along with the other souls, and from those pieces new souls will be created and distributed among the universes). No matter who you are, how rich or poor, how good or evil, where you live or what you want, there's no escape of death. Only those who "work" for the multiverse" are temporarily exempt from being recycled, but eventually everyone goes"

VII. Death, Reincarnation & The Recycling Process

Q: This is all very interesting. Please try to explain what happens when we die here on earth? Do our souls just join with the others or are we reborn via reincarnation?

A: I'll copy/paste from a previous comment:

" We all are meant to be recycled (in human terms, our souls will be sent to a place where it will be shredded to pieces along with the other souls, and from those pieces new souls will be created and distributed among the universes). No matter who you are, how rich or poor, how good or evil, where you live or what you want, there's no escape of death. Only those who "work" for the multiverse" are temporarily exempt from being recycled, but eventually everyone goes"

Reincarnation happens when a soul arrives at the "waiting room" (I call it limbo for reference, idk the name) in the exact same place another soul is already occupying, which forces the arriving soul to " bounce back" to the " living world", thus " reincarnation ". The new soul that was meant to be is just " put on queue" until a new vessel is available

Q: When you say a soul gets "shredded to pieces along with the other souls" to create new souls, does that mean that eventually your "consciousness" dies? So you might have the chance to live some lives (reincarnate multiple times) and then it comes to a point where your turn is over and is essentially "lights out"?

A: Your consciousness doesn't die, it stays fragmented along with the pieces. Your consciousness may influence the inheritors of your fragments, or may be completely overwhelmed by the new host. You obviously have heard about people feeling/knowing/dreaming they've been somewhere else, someone else, have done something else they can't recall or can but it's unfamiliar. Well, that's the "embers" calling out, that's the brain recognizing a strong influence from a single or multiple fragments at once.

Q: Thank you for your answer. I have another question regarding reincarnation. Some people who have had NDEs and OBEs say that we reincarnate and our lives are somewhat planned. That we make contracts to have certain experiences (Being born with an illness, marrying a certain person etc..) Some say we choose our parents, our life circumstances, and certain struggles we might face in life. Do you believe that to be true?

A: I won't discard your point, but I cannot confirm it as well. I know Destiny is a thing because I've actually met Destiny in the flesh, and yes, there's a type of control over people's life (Destiny's shenanigans), but I cannot talk about those experiences nor if they actually come from other beings/phenomenons that really allow mortals to choose their life since I haven't dug into it.

Well...maybe I can say it's true because Destiny allowed me to choose my life here. If it happened to me, maybe it's more common than what I thought? Interesting.

Q: Hey, absolutely amazed and cant stop reading. I'd just like to ask. You said souls are shredded and made into a new one. Several souls, it could be anyone's shreds right? And you said consciousness doesnt die. How come one soul has all these consciousness of all the shreds of other souls. It could mean that my consciousness right is actually in all the bodies where my shreds have been to? Please correct me if i'm wrong. Looking forward for your answer

A: Yes.

The fragments are so small, along the piece of consciousness, that it barely makes a difference. If it does, it's because the fragment came from a higher being. The fragments are like the soul's atoms. How can a single atom control an entire structure? It can't. Same with the fragments.

And yes, when you get shredded, your inheritors will have the pieces of your consciousness as well. Some may even tap into them and see your memories. They probably will call it "my past life". Sounds familiar?

Q: [deleted]

A: Unfortunately, no. We all are meant to be recycled (in human terms, our souls will be sent to a place where it will be shredded to pieces along with the other souls, and from those pieces new souls will be created and distributed among the universes). No matter who you are, how rich or poor, how good or evil, where you live or what you want, there's no escape of death. Only those who "work" for the multiverse" are temporarily exempt from being recycled, but eventually everyone goes. That's the truth religion shields people from. It's better to die with hope, even if they're lies, that meeting your end in despair, I guess

Q: How is one supposed to square this with the thousands of NDEs, OBEs, APs, and afterdeath communications that explicitly say existence continues after death (at least in some capacity and often without religious dogmatism). I hope you can understand why it's difficult to believe you are correct, especially compared to others who have spent their whole life astral projecting like Jurgen Ziewe that affirm the existence of an afterlife.

A: Because death is not instant. After the body stops functioning, the soul will stay in this "waiting room" until a "cleaner" comes and wipes it all out. I am not sure of the number but the "cleaning process" has a delay of several hundred thousand years. So it's actually possible to interact with souls of the dead from even before our history started to be viable. My point was the the "recycling" is inevitable, not instant

Q: What about souls of all animal beings in this planet? Do they differ from the human beings and is there a reason behind why some reincarnate into humans and some others into animals? I always had this question in mind, not sure you have the answer

A: The soul of all living beings in the Multiverse is composed of the fragments of all previously "recycled" souls who were "mashed" and "reassembled" into new souls. Whether the being is sentient or now, whether it's considered someone or something, is entirely up to chance, and attached subjectively to outsiders. Life is life, and its purpose is simple: to die, be recycled and give energy to the multiverse. The rest is relative.

Q: Thank you! So if I understand correctly, it happens randomly and by pure chance. We could have been a frog but instead we came into this universe as human beings.

The sad part is... If we get mashed and recycled, we will never be able to meet the souls of those we loved during our life in the afterlife... right?

A: You'll have the time during your stay at the "limbo" ("waiting room"), but once the "cleaning" starts, you'll be lucky if the beings who will inherit your fragments even remember your part in life. That's the harsh truth of things

Q: After death, our souls go to a waiting room to be shredded. What's the experience of being in this "waiting room"? What's it like?

A: I don't know for sure since I've only heard of it through our universe's core, but it appears to be just that: a "room for wanderers to wander". It also serves as a "platform" for other beings to jump to our realms since our planes of existence are technically touching each other. These ghosts, "demons" and such are just effects caused by an interaction either from here to there or vice versa.

Q: What about karma?

You speak about karma in a comment about Yahweh. But why worry about it if the soul is gonna be shredded and recycled in the end?

A: For that reason, I don't take karma into consideration. My family says there's some sort of mechanism that works with causality regarding mortals (it's not karma as humans label it, but similar in some way) but, since I'm not familiar with it, I'll say nothing about it

Q: Yea but you are asserting that the soul is independent of and supersedes the body and can reside in many different types of bodies in many different universes. So "we" as beings are technically not actually human or anything physical as we know it.

Humans are not our true selves, rather our soul is. Therefore, our true selves are not mortal humans.

Or, are you saying that the soul itself is mortal?

Also why would the universe core need to feed off of recycling souls?

A: The physical body is but a vessel for the soul. What you're implying in the first paragraph is correct.

Same with the second statement and the third as well.

And yes, the souls are mortal as well. There are beings and even other races that actually feed on souls. That's why APing is dangerous

Also, the core doesn't feed from the recycled souls. The recycled souls feed the multiverse (the being) and then part of that energy is distributed to sustain the universes and their cores.

Q: If we focus on how we live rather than how we die, would that alter the greater review strategy and rules to something that is more positive based? For example, some see the love they could have given. What if instead of sowing regret in our hearts as a unit, we give water to the things we have done out of love?

A: Life would not be such a precarious omen of death and instead be an irreplaceable experience that's meant to be lived once.

Q: What happens when we die?

A: See other comments. I don't wanna copy/paste anymore.

Q: So my turn as someone having experience from researching AP and NDEs.

(didn't have any)

1.all people with ndes nention the white light and beings full of love.
They seem to lewrn everything once they cross over.
They meet loved ones and pets.
Then some say they get uncarnated choosing who to be.

No shredding or destruction of the soul.Memories and reviews of life. Almost 98% common experiences.

Do you have any knowledge of that?

Isn't that just a piece of shit, just to be "batteries" in the way that you have described?

2.Realities are unlimited we all know that, studying quantum physics.How easy is it to manifest something in seconds ,in our reality just by choosing it and having it in no time?

3.God: One being for all multi/omni universe (call it as you want)

What is the substance and The "personality" of "IT" as the creator (because there is no way there isn't God).

What about other Divine beings eg Jesus, Buddha or messiahs of each religion? What is the "reality" of that?

4.Do we live in a matrix?

Can you exit it? Is your AP that way?

5. Connected to 1): Is there any chance of not being reincarnated?

6)Demons do exist from what I have read as entities trying to get ahold of your body.

Why angels should not exist then as well?

7)Are you any religious? You me tuoned Yahweh this is the name of God for the Jews If I remember well?

7)Where are you from ?

Too much info , too many questions I know but I consider myself understanding lots and I have studied unlimited stuff regarding everything other dimensional/ ndes/AP etc

Thanks 😊😊

A: I'll be brief.

1) What I have discovered regarding death is how it all works at a macro level. I haven't, and won't due to "technical issues", research the circumstances around the death and afterlife of single individuals or populations because I cannot store all that data in my brain. I won't deny or confirm the existence of individual beings who can spiritually affect the afterlife of other biological beings for whatever reason. I cannot say how each drop of water interacts with each other or with other fish in the stream, but I can tell you where the river will end up going. Even the universes have an expiration date. All is meant to be recycled. It is shit, yes, but reality won't care about my feelings, or anyone's, about it. All that's left, at least in my case, is acceptance.

2) That really depends if the universe can support such interaction. Ours is not entirely in the state to do so. It's still healing

3) If you define "God" as the ultimate ruler of everything that exists, that's false. In terms of hierarchy, the top is composed of 5 "super beings" who are the "managers" of all that is. They act, in a way, like the neurons of the multiverse, which is a being as well. If you wanna call the multiverse "God", do so. The term "God" for humans is so abstract I won't even bother giving sense to it. I "work" directly for the multiverse (I'll call it "Garden for simplicity's sake). I do not know much about Garden's personality since I haven't had much interaction with it, but it is somewhat "inconsistent": it treats life as data, yet values relationships such as friendships, with lower beings. It's like you treating your cells as data but liking to debate and play cards with them. In my perspective, it's nonsense, but it's thanks to that nonsense that I've learned A LOT about how life really runs

4) No need to exit because there is no "matrix" or any artificial reality. At least in this universe

5) Not being reincarnated is actually how things are meant to be. Reincarnation is a "glitch"

6) Demons depicted as said by religion existed in another universe, but not in this one. Angels as well. There are beings who do act similar to both, but humans, in their ignorance, tend to use terms such as "angels" and "demons" as broadly as they use the term "god". A shadow moving on a house may be a demon right? What if it's just a high dimension being who's just passing by and it's presence happens to be interacting with our plane from up there just like your steps may cause ripples in a nearby water puddle on the street? If you know what we would look like to 2D and 1D beings, know that higher Ds for us would look even worse. Our perception being able to just interpret it all as a shadow is nothing surprising.

7) USA

VIII. Verification, Personal Background & Addresses to Skepticism

Q: Genuine question, do you have any evidence this isn't a delusion occurring only in your mind?

A: I commented in detail about the experiments my wife and I did regarding all this, because we're both the kind of people who need to see to believe (she's even worse than me, she could see and still discard it as trivial, at least I'm open minded to things). Feel free to reach that comment because I could copy/paste it here but there are so many comments that I don't know where it is

Q: You mentioned your wife is a biologist and that it took really long for her to find a physical proof (of your experiences, I suppose).

Could you share what was that proof?

A: We started experimenting with possessions. Since her sensitivity to the spiritual things is unreal, to the point she could summon her own soul-self from over there to this plane, see it, hear it and even feel it (now it was my turn to believe her on that) I suggested something: what if she traded consciousness with her other self?

It worked. Not only with her other self from over there, but with all our familiars who were linked to through the Shiontioruk mark on our souls. Her personality, way of staring, acting, talking, moving, the words and dialect she used whenever she got switched were totally different and matched perfectly with the original personality of the one from over there. Even her tone of voice, being able to modify it in ways that she couldn't replicate consciously, or some guttural sounds that some of our familiars could do through her throat in order to replicate the sounds they could originally do over there, was undeniable proof. She never remembered anything that happened here with her body, but she could tell me about things she saw over there like where she was, when, with who and how it looked like.

We tried it with me, but I couldn't. For some reason, I am able to constantly maintain the connection, unlike her, but not going as deep as she did. We then did half possessions, her being conscious but allowing them to control her body for her, and we discovered that she could easily move in ways that she struggled to do on her own. One of the most important factors was her stamina, strength and flexibility: whenever possessed or half-possessed, none of those body limits were active. Of course, once she regained control, her body would pay the consequences, but the fact that she could lose her "limitors" in that state was food for thought.

Even with that, we both entered a period of not believing it because we asked some of our wives to come down here and physically kill us so we could transfer fully to that side. That whole ordeal failed due to extreme ignorance on our part (regarding how high Ds interact with low Ds, the whole ordeal with soul fragments, and the true nature of us humans), but we didn't know why by that time so we struggled to believe it was all real until that very night. Remember that from that side they're high Ds, and that a drop of water can fit in an ocean but it takes an near infinite effort for an ocean to fit in a drop of water? The process they used to physically come to us without disrupting the universe was a whole ordeal, extremely painful for them btw, all on its own, but the dimensions in our universe were affected nonetheless. That night, after they left, we both heard a extremely fucking loud sound that was like, not joking, "ripping water apart". If the liquid state of the water could act as a solid, and that solid could be ripped apart the way clothes can be, that would be how it sounded like. They told us it was that the dimensions were "stretched" with them over there, but once they left they regained their original shape. We both were in the kitchen discussing the veracity of this whole ordeal, we both heard the sound and we both agreed in its description. That was the time we consolidated that this shit was all real.

There have been other instances, like creatures visiting our house and we both seeing it or the attacks I've suffered because of those creatures, but none of it even comes close to our daily experience with some of our familiars telling us the future. There are two of our wives who can actually see all the timelines at all times, so, with a little bit of math from over there, they can actually predict our future with a high degree of certainty. We use that ability on a daily basis (have been using it for years, mostly me because my wife doesn't like knowing what will happen except when driving), and they have only failed 3 to 4 times if I remember correctly. Also, through the physical intervention of an entity from over there, my wife got cured of PCOS. Cured to the extent that her ovaries were filled to the brim with cysts (extremely painful btw according to her) and all that disappeared overnight, literally. She is physically, and medically, free of PCOS, which is a chronic disease that has treatment but not cure. All thanks to our connection to that side.

Q: Would you be willing to do an interview with Otherworld podcast? Listeners love this kind of thing.

Contact – Otherworld <https://share.google/xl8zIVA4ckfbTWgpW>

A: Idk. Humans have so much bias towards so many things, and we're too materialistic to even focus, yet give credit, to our spiritual side. I tilt my hat to those who try though. My point is: idk if it will be well received.

Q: How do you know what you are experiencing is actuality instead of mental illness? That's what it would be considered here on earth by psychiatric standards.

A: I was like you, believing that I had 8th Grade Syndrome or any kind of mental illness and even put myself in metal hospitals twice, but there were many experiences and experiments I did, along with meeting people who were actually there in that same world at the same time as me and could bring me details about the place, and about me as well, that only I or someone who actually was there could have known.

One of those experiences was precisely there, in my first admission to a mental hospital. One day the doctors sat us in a circle and told us to talk about why we were there. I did my part (no one said anything because it was meant to be a respectful share), but some people got interested in it and approached me after the session was over, one of them being the nephew of a prominent drug dealer from my home town which scared me to death cuz those people actually killed others, and it was close to home. He told me that, if my shit was true, that I was free to prove it to him.

By that time I was a teenager and, with my APing, I bragged about being able to contact the dead (which I actually could, by accessing the "limbo"). I touched his chest and focused on his soul, and then I saw someone on the other side who was "protecting" him. I described the old lady by detail and even asked her some questions and the answers made him fall on his knees and ugly cry. Mind you: this dude was like 16 years old but around 6'2 and built like a bulldog. His arms were like three of mine. Apparently, his grandma died the month prior and he wasn't over it. The old lady was her grandma. They all believed me afterwards and even offered me a position in their..."clan"...?...with free marijuana and trips to the cinema, and I said yes, but once I got out of the hospital I ran away to the other side and never looked back. I still feel kinda bad about it cuz they looked like they were actually chill people, but I didn't want to get into legal troubles.

That was one of the times where my reaction was "Damn, this shit is real?" and got a juicy confidence boost. The veracity of my situation comes from occurrences like this. I've explained more experiences and experiments in other comments.

But feel free to believe whatever you want. I'm not convincing anyone of anything, I'm just answering questions.

Q: Hi! Im bummed that you keep your profile hidden so the I couldnt go back and see any other posts or comments that might offer more insights to your experiences if any. I mean, living as you do, what contributions to Reddit do you have? Or is it just like everyone else's with random comments on AITA? This is not said in skepticism but in genuine curiosity.

I was hoping some questions I have but cant articulate or would post might be answered.

A: My reddit is stupidly average, used mostly for entertainment, so I put it hidden so that my previous normal posts didn't influence the perception people would have on me regarding this topic. I usually don't talk about this because people either don't take me seriously or don't believe me, which I understand both, but today I just felt like talking about it. Call it a mood swing I guess.

Also, I don't contribute to anything. I'm sure my life experience won't help anyone, but I'm willing to give it a try through this post. Sorry for the disappointment.

Q: I hope this doesn't get deleted because I am sincerely asking this..

Have you ever shared these experiences with doctors here or been diagnosed with any issues either physical or mental?

A: I tried, but they are people who are trained to look at things through the lens of a knowledge that's taken for certain. There's not even the remote possibility for any of this to be real to any of them. It is what it is.

Q: Are you completely serious?

A: I've spent my sweet deal of time explaining with details most of the topics mentioned here. Do you still think I'm not serious?

Q: Nobody cares, we all have enough going on to bother with your delusions

A: You cared enough to comment though. Good luck with whatever you're going through

Q: Drugs are a hell of a drug

A: I guess? I've been clean all my life tho

Q: Have you ever taken any type of psychedelic? If so how do psychedelic experiences compare to your experience with AP? (Sorry if this is a dumb question)

A: I've been wanting to try mushrooms because I have hopes I could actually connect deeper without compromising my Astral senses, but since I've been told it's dangerous and people have lost their minds, I've been taking it into serious consideration

Q: I'd say this is larp since cia and Monroe says we are in a prison planet

A: I won't convince you of anything, that's not my purpose here, but I find it hilarious how my credibility depends on my reputation. Since I'll never monetize my knowledge, make books, podcasts, and make my name known, I'll forever be a troll and a roleplayer. Meanwhile, all the others can actually be fooling people, but because they have their face and names all over the place, ah they must be legit. Hilarious how this world works!

Q: Alright, man I really don't know how to begin or what to say really. I'm trying to figure all this out myself. The story is so long and ridiculously complicated. My chest tightens if I even begin to think about laying all the parts out. I do it anyway in spurts as I inevitably run into something that is so blasted unbelievable or ... horrific honestly. I know I need to write it all down. I know I'm losing memories the longer I wait.

Here's the thing. I know what the OP is talking about. I've done the same thing. Not the same thing exactly because the OP approached it differently than I have. It also may be in completely different universe/universes or dimensions than theirs. I had no idea people called that astral projection. I experience much more than astral projection though.

I've met many species of spirit with many different personalities/compositions/belief systems/moralities/purposes(?). No I'm not on drugs. No, it's nothing like schizophrenia.

I've been to five separate psychiatric professionals including two hospitals and a university. After tests, a whole bunch of talking plus trying every single antipsychotic known to man (to the result of not even a small change in my experience,) every one of them said there just are some things in life that are unexplainable. I've read hundreds of descriptions and accounts of psychotic breaks/manic episodes/hallucinations/ drug interactions. (DMT is an interesting read and there are some similar elements.) Nothing I've read sounds remotely similar. I'm telling you the absolute truth.

None of my experience has been chaotic. It's been a timeline of a story building on occurrences. In the past I've said it has been like a Tolkien book but darker and full of whispers. Hints of things glimpsed then hidden. Out of nowhere miracles. Things have happened that have made me walk around in sun filled twilight. Beings of light and shadow that fluctuate between mist and matter. Slowly ever becoming more tangible only to recede into the ether like they never were there, right there. Everything inconceivable and undeniable all at once.

Not only that but the entities I've been communicating with and experiencing have begun to appear in this universe. Eyes open. They have shown themselves dense in the past but I took some time off for some months. I normally have to reach out to experience anything or ask them to show themselves. Lately though if I'm silent they'll pipe in with a "Excuse me...." Or condense their shapes slightly until I engage.

I've asked them many questions. They've told me many different stories which change or build on each other. Never really leaving any historical statements for too long by themselves and out of place. I have been trying to keep a net zero approach to believing anything. I 50% believe and I 50% do not what they say at times. I have ran afoul of this standard after some particularly incredible interactions.

They have different languages. One language is completely made of projections. It's like watching 2d television. Several times they've created visual sequences and narratives on a wall using shades of light and darkness. Probably the most incredible one included a spaceship, an image of millions of people lining up to get into an elevator to go up to the spaceship and an asteroid. The whole thing appeared in the morning beginning with two purple orbs, one that started to say as I walked in the room " (my name,) I guess we owe you an explanation." After which it began the display. It ended with a purple orb emanating from the pieces of paper in my hand. They were originally encouraging sayings that I took from a book my mother had. We had been picking them out to gift family members. I went through them and they had changed. One of them started with "Hey you. Yes you!" This was recently.

So... what is my point? Well, I can attest to some of the things the original poster stated. Other concepts though, like our purpose, the universe, God, multiple timelines, multiple worlds, etc. I have a much much different take on. I'm still trying to figure most things out. I'm kind of plodding forward one silently furrowed brow step at a time.

I can tell you one thing though, it's truly humbling and amazing but very dangerous. Evil exists and its objective haunts life. We are in luck though because Majesty is real and light has a topography that we are only beginning to reveal.

I'll end there because I'm pretty sure this post has unintentionally been epic. Thank you for your time and consideration.

A: It sounds like you know the building and the people inside while I know about the building but focus on the city it belongs to. Your experience is interesting. I don't interact with lower beings due to the dimensional difference; I just watch from afar, learn and move on. It's totally amazing the fact that you have this kind of contact back and forth with such creatures. Most of the people I know are high dimensional and spread across universes. All the possible knowledge you could have at a lower scale of things, the very zone I've been skipping, is extremely intriguing.

Also, I'm very familiar with that image-by-image language. Those who can't talk in my world use that very form of communication. The most beautiful language I ever witnessed was from some rock-like beings that could produce their own light, and they talked through the control of their own brightness. It was truly a mesmerizing interaction.

I look forward to keep talking to you.